Testing Missions in Context:

From Checking to Assessment

Created for:

A European conference
on context-driven testing
- for testers, by testers.

The core mission of Let's Test is to help build an active community in Europe of software testers that either identify themselves with the context-driven school of software testing or are interested in learning more about it.

A Day in the Life of a Test Manager

Mike Lyles, Sr. QA Manager, Lowe's

What are the Major Conflict Zones in a Testing Organization?

The Expert Opinions

Jerry
Weinberg

The major conflict is with people who believe that without any testers, there wouldn't be any errors.

Testing work is about revealing information about the product. Sometimes that information is painful... as Jerry Weinberg suggests... that decisions about quality are always political and emotional, so in addition to emotional congruence, a Test Manager needs political acumen... Test Managers who see themselves as quality gatekeepers will often be party to various kinds of unhappiness, until they recognize that testing is not quality assurance; testing informs quality assurance.

Being a “Trusted Advisor” requires three core skills

Source:
The Trusted Advisor
David Maister,

Robert Galford

From “Becoming a Trusted Advisor”

Julie Gardiner, STPCon 2011

Trust must be earned & deserved earning trust

- trust grows over time rather than just appears
 - beware that trust can be lost in an instant
- trust is personal
 - it involves both rational and emotional factors
- trust is a two-way relationship
 - trust is different for the test manager & senior manager
- trust will entail risk
 - if risks are not created, trust will flounder

to be trusted is never a right... it is always a privilege and honour

"And this is where our ROI became an IOU."
